

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

When huge corporations own all the stations it is harder and harder to get fair coverage of any issue. In such an important election year, it is even more necessary that the media is held to the rules that help protect the public they claim to inform.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. Thank you.
